STUDENT RESOURCES

Disability Support Services

It is the responsibility of the High School to accommodate students with disabilities taking MCC courses in the High School building.

The Learning and Tutoring Centers

The Learning and Tutoring Centers provides assistance with building academic skills, conducting research, and utilizing resources in order to foster learning. Learning and Tutoring Centers (LTCs) provide free tutoring, resources, and services to support the learning needs of students across all areas of the College's curriculum. Each center has state-of-the-art equipment. Numerous software applications exist to support specific curriculum needs.

Anyone enrolled in a course at MCC may use our facilities. We also help prospective students prepare for assessments.

Math Centers

MCC's Math Centers offer drop-in assistance for all levels of math, from basic mathematics through Calculus. We can help you with your homework, test reviews, or brushing up your math skills in preparation for the Compass Test Placement Test.

We have many resources available for your use in the Math Center. These resources include calculators, textbooks, student solution manuals, tutorial videos and more.

Our centers are staffed with friendly qualified individuals that realize not everyone understands math right away. Visit by yourself, bring a study partner, or even create a study group. We will help you find the answers to your math questions. The Math Center is a great resource for students, faculty, and staff.

Writing Centers

The Writing Centers, staffed by experienced English teachers and writing consultants, provides professional assistance and outreach programs to help students with written communication across the disciplines and beyond. Simply stated, the Writing Center is a place into which writers invite other writers to dialogue about writing.

There are Writing Centers located at the Fort Omaha, South Omaha and Elkhorn Valley Campuses as well as the Fremont Area and Sarpy Centers. For a link, please search the MCC website.

Libraries

Library staff members work closely with faculty to instruct students in finding, evaluating and using information effectively. The libraries offer collections of various materials including books, periodicals and online databases that have been selected to support the programs offered at the College. The campus library supervisors encourage faculty to contact them to set up instructional sessions or for their students to discuss materials to be added to the collection. Libraries are located on each of the three main College campuses. The SOC library is a joint library with the Omaha Public Library. Current faculty may use the City of La Vista Public Library at SRP at no charge.
